AGE CORRESPONDENT

✓ She is probably the coolest mum you could ever have. Dolly Ahluwalia, who played the typical loving Punjabi mother to Ayushmaan Khurana in Vicky Donor, is set to make her debut on the small screen. The grand old girl says that the concept of Star's upcoming show Teri Meri Love Stories really touched her heart.

"I have always been apprehensive of doing television but when producer Rajan Shahi told me about this show, I simply could not say no. And here I play a cool nani, so I am really excited and looking forward to it."

Filmi mom's television debut

Dolly Ahluwalia

Dolly Ahluwalia, who catapulted to fame as Ayushmann Khurrana's feisty mother in Vicky Donor, will soon be seen in a telefilm. The actress, based in Chandigarh, has earlier been a part of films like Yahaan and Aloo Chaat and is a well-known costume designer in the film industry too. Known to be very choosy about the work she takes up, Dolly has accepted the role of a granny in producer Rajan Shahi's telefilm, a love story. Sources say the actress was initially reluctant to take up the offer as she doesn't like to move out of Chandigarh for long schedules, but the producer was adamant on casting her and she consented finally. We hear Dolly is in Mumbai and has started shooting. This film, starring TV actor Gautam Rode is to be aired on a leading GEC.
